CANTON.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

Canton, 18th November.
The foreign Consuls called at the residence of the late Viceroy Tao Mu last Saturday.

FORTY LIZARDS TALK AS MEDICINE!
All over China the Chinese refuse to believe in foreign medicines; they say that the climate and their manner of living are so different from those of foreigners, that the foreign medicine is too strong and does not suit their weak stomach; it might do more harm than good. So, as a rule, whenever a foreign doctor is called in to attend to the sick, Chinese medicine is taken instead. The foreign doctor is told that the patient has taken his medicine when it has been thrown away. It is said that while the late Viceroy Tao Mu was under the medical treatment of a foreign doctor he had also, by the instigation of his attendants, three Chinese doctors to attend to him, who in the absence of the foreign doctor had prescribed for his patient forty lizards' tails and other rubbish to take—which accelerated his death.

HOUSING OF THE FLOATING POPULATION.
In some places along the river front there are numerous makeshifts in which the boat population live for years. The landmen generally despise, ill-treat, and squeeze them, and if they have no money or friends to protect them, they would not go into the city to live. As the government is looking for more places in which to establish English schools the Acting Prefect Kung has summoned before him the occupants of over two hundred makeshifts and required them to shift to other places. For a makeshift of large size the government proposes to pay the occupants $50 tons, for one of middling size 20 tons, and small size 10 tons. The boat people, however, refuse they have not sufficient time to look for other places.

DEATH FROM STRANGULATION.
On Sunday last there was a case of strangulation on one of the jetties near the I. M. Customs. The culprit, of about 20 years of age, who had confessed to the crime of attacking and robbing a ship's crew in Tak Hing Street, and wounding two natives, was carried in a basket to the place of execution among a large crowd of people, and there put in one of the upright wooden cages invented by the late Li Hung-chang. He was strangled with thin ropes of about the size of the small finger and killed in a few seconds, his body being left there for two or three days.

SWATOW.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

Swatow, 18th November.

THE OPIUM TRAFFIC.
A letter signed by twenty-four Chinese honghs was sent to Mr. Richardson, head of Messrs. Bradley & Co., thanking him for the trouble taken on their behalf with regard to the abolition of the Kowloon Hong Co's opium tax. Since the office of the latter company is still open, the opium merchants have also petitioned Mr. Richardson to get the Tao-tai to issue a proclamation to the effect that opium will in future not be subject to any more taxes and that the Chinese may resume the importation of the drug themselves.

NAVAL MOVEMENTS.
H.M.S. Albatross arrived here a few days ago from Amoy. Speculations as to her intentions in coming here were very rife. Her arrival seems, with some reason, to be connected with the opium difficulty. An attempt is still made to levy the tax at Chiayangchow, a large Hakka district.

AN ENTERTAINMENT.

A well-arranged smoking concert was given by the shipping fraternity and H.M.S. Albatross in the Kialat Club on Saturday last at 8 p.m. The Club's premises were nicely decorated for the occasion, and no pains or trouble were spared to make the evening a success, which, in the end, it proved to be, to the great satisfaction of all concerned. In answer to the invitations issued nearly all Swatow turned out. The concert commenced at about 9 o'clock, and, thanks to the splendid management of the chairman, Capt. Roland Nugent, R.N., of H.M.S. Albatross, it went through without the slightest hitch. Judging by the great marvellous that prevailed everyone present must have enjoyed himself immensely. The recitation of a "Band of Hope Meeting" by Mr. Watson-Paul, author of Longshore Romances, provoked great laughter. Everyone was enraptured, particularly Messrs. Drake and King, who were recalled several times. The sword dance by Capt. W. Young, to the great regret of many, unfortunately did not come off. The string band of H.M.S. Albatross was in attendance. Mr. Lewis greatly pleased the company by his violin solos. In the course of the evening a presentation of a pretty pewter mug, engraved "H.M.S. Albatross," was made by Mr. King, on behalf of the mercantile marine, to Commander Roland Nugent. Mr. King, who, by the way, is a son of Erin, made a few humorous remarks in presenting the mug to Commander Nugent, who made an equally witty reply. The company dispersed long after the midnight bells had chimed.

LATEST STEAMER MOVEMENTS.

The C.P.R. steamer Empress of Japan, arrived at Kobe at 4 p.m. on the 18th inst., and left again at midnight same day for Shanghai, via Nagasaki, where she is due to arrive at 6 a.m. on the 22nd inst.
The C.P.R. steamer Athenian left Vancouver on the 18th inst. a.m. for Hongkong via the usual ports of call.
The N.Y.K. steamer Kasuga Maru (Australian Line) left Kobe via Moji for this port on the 18th inst. p.m., and is expected here on the 26th inst.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."
Hongkong, 18th November.
Sir,—May I presume to address you on the above, which is perhaps the most important subject that can be submitted for public discussion at the present moment? The recent sudden curtailment of our water supply has, it is needless to say, caused much inconvenience amongst the poorer classes of the community, both Europeans and Chinese. And, strange as it may seem, although the reservoirs appear to be almost full, in spite of the Water Authority's announcement, that the mains below the level of Causeway Road would be open daily from 6 to 10 o'clock a.m., very many streets in Chinatown are not able to procure a drop of water through their house service. Many having to pay for water, the quality of which is always unreliable, are already beginning to feel the pinch of this extra charge on their monthly salaries very severely. Houses in the Western District have even had their entire supply stopped, and now their tenants have to obtain water from the street hydrants as their only source. It will be at once seen that such a sudden change, with the increased cost of living, has caused considerable immediate distress amongst the inhabitants.

It may not be generally known that at the time the present Water Bill was before the Legislative Council, during the third reading in August last, there was a feeling of great uneasiness amongst the Chinese on account of the hardship which it was foreseen would necessarily result. When the Bill passed into law, to complicate of tenement houses it meant that all such houses would have to rely entirely on the street hydrants for their supply. In consequence of all this Messrs. Fung Wa Chiu and Ahmet Ramjahn were deputed by the Chinese Commercial Union to instruct Messrs. Johnston, Stokes and Master, and Dr. Ho Kai to draw up a petition to be forwarded to the Secretary of State praying for the introduction into the Colony of the Ridermain system as recommended by Mr. Chadwick in his report on the sanitary condition of Hongkong in April last. This petition, bearing the signatures of nearly ten thousand Chinese, was duly forwarded to England. And it would now appear that a telegram has lately been received in reference to this petition by H.M. the Governor, who in turn has requested the Chinese representatives in the Legislative Council to ascertain from the petitioners how it is proposed to defray the cost of this new system. At the meeting of the Chinese Commercial Union held on Tuesday last, the Hon. Dr. Ho Kai proposed that the sum of $800 be contributed by each Chinese tenement-house towards the estimated outlay of introducing this kind of main system. The hon. gentleman further estimated that as there were about 8,000 Chinese tenement houses the sum raised would represent about $640,000. To this Mr. Ahmet Ramjahn dissented and suggested as the fairest method that all houses should contribute pro-rata on their assessment value, in which case six months' taxes extra would cover the whole outlay. At a subsequent meeting held on Friday last this proposition was adopted unanimously.

For the information of the public it may be as well to explain that by the use of this Ridermain system it is claimed that every house in the Colony would be equally supplied with water, as distribution would be much more general and waste almost an impossibility. European houses, particularly those supplied through meters, would find especially in the direction of economy that this new system has every advantage in its favour. It is therefore to be hoped it may soon become an accomplished fact.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

RUSSIA AND MANCHURIA.

The London and China Express in its issue of the 17th ult., concluding an article on the above subject, says:—
The bulk of Manchuria, it has been arranged, shall be evacuated by two further stages. That is, all but the legally maintained corps of rail guards. Russia is entitled to protect her railway, but these guards amount in effect to an occupying corps for the country. How the evident intention of Russia to seize upon the fertile plains of Northern China, rich in mineral wealth, is to be met by other powers whose interests in China are incomparably greater than those of Russia is a problem that will require nice handling. It may be surmised that the action of the United States in the Far East was not undertaken without some degree of friendly understanding with Great Britain. It was the latter Power that secured the insertion of the clause in the Chinese Treaty with the Powers which foretold any attempt on the part of any individual Power, or in other words, of Russia, to take payment of the Chinese indemnity in kind instead of in cash. Russia cannot, therefore, secure any territory in Manchuria by private arrangement in lieu of the outstanding debt. China has the right to buy out the railway through her territory. It has been suggested that it would probably be a fair investment of British and American capital to assist this solution of the difficulty, by enabling the finance of China to come to the rescue of the railway. This might be ethically correct, and in accordance with the agreement under which Russia constructed the line, but practically such an arrangement would doubtless be found impossible of fulfilment for reasons that will readily suggest themselves. What we want to secure is that in such portion of Chinese territory as Russia may take, or control, British trade shall be as free as to Russians and others, and that the duties—alike for all—shall not exceed the Chinese Tariff. Russia has not previously shown anywhere in the world a desire to give the foreigners equal rights with her own subjects, and there is no reason to suppose that she will make any territory she secures in the Far East an exception to this rule. It consequently behoves those Powers interested not to relax their vigilance in any way.

HAMBURG LETTER.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

Hamburg, 14th October.

Considerable interest has been evinced just recently in the Hamburg sugar market, and there has been no little excitement caused in business circles, among sugar-merchants and brokers, by the sudden rise in the price of sugar during the past fortnight. Some idea of the rapidity of the rise may be gauged from the fact that the price of sugar now stands at 3s. 3d. per cwt. for old, last year's sugar, and at 7s. 1d. for the new, whereas, at the end of September, business was being done in old sugar at 5s. 10d. and in new at 2s. 2d. per cwt., so that there has been an unexpected rise of almost one shilling per cwt. in an exceedingly short space of time. The reason of this movement in prices is attributed, partly to an anticipated shortage in this year's sugar-crop, and partly to the introduction into the market of a highly increased element of speculation which is steadily becoming more prevalent. This speculation is in all probability due, in its turn, to the fact that the time is now at hand when the semi-official reports should be coming in as to the quantity and quality of this year's crop, but these are much delayed by the lateness of the potato-harvest, and a state of considerable uncertainty prevails in consequence. Wet weather has greatly retarded the gathering in of the potatoes, and the potato-growers have been compelled to keep in employment many of the men who should long ago have been at work on the beet-fields.

The general opinion at present is to the effect that the wet will have caused the beets to grow too large, and that the average essence of sugar contained in the beetroot will consequently suffer in comparison with that of former years. Against this reports come from some of the sugar-producing districts of Germany stating that the recent cold weather and frosts, experienced during several nights last, have prevented the beets from swelling, while the ripening has, notwithstanding, made satisfactory progress.

In East and West Prussia the beetroot is not so well developed as last year, and the sugar essence is not expected to reach the standard of 1901; the harvest is in full progress but proceeds slowly owing to the soft state of the ground. In Upper Silesia the growers are not satisfied with the size or weight of the beetroot, the sugar-extract showing much variation. In Lower Silesia the refining factories have not commenced work. From the districts bordering on the Rhine, from Mecklenburg, Oderbruch, Pomerania, and Westphalia, news comes that, owing to the wet weather, much labour is still in employment for the completion of the potato-harvest, and that the sugar-crop is consequently much behind-hand. The reports from Hanover and Brunswick vary very much in effect. In this state of general uncertainty, when everybody is eagerly waiting for definite news from day to day, contradictory statements and opinions are heard on all sides: the whole position, in fact, is conducive to speculation. On the one hand the opinion—in all probability emanating from the sugar-growers themselves or from the refining factories—is vouchsafed that the wet, far from exercising any detrimental effect on the beetroot, has in reality not only lightened the task of plucking out the beets but has also increased the quantity of sap contained, and that, given a short period of favourable weather now, the total output of sugar may even equal that of last year's record crop. On the other hand it is urged that not nearly so much arable land has been under cultivation for sugar this season as was the case last year, and that the crop, for that and for other reasons, already mentioned, is bound to fall far below that of 1901. Meanwhile excitement, uncertainty, and consequent speculation prevail on the market.

At the moment, pending the arrival of the statistical and official reports so anxiously awaited from the sugar producing districts, the question for the merchant to decide is whether it is advisable for him to hold his present stock or to sell at a slightly reduced figure—resting content with the profit of about 3d. per cwt. which would accrue to him now as the result of the recent rise in prices. The selling price at present is about 1s. per cwt. above the buying price.

If, as is some people's opinion, this year's crop does eventually produce another huge output to be added to the quantity of sugar still left over from last year, there will be such an enormous quantity of sugar on the market that prices will undoubtedly fall to a very low figure, thereby bringing, from an economical point of view, another unfavourable year for the sugar-market. The opinion expressed among sugar-merchants in Hamburg is that the total output for the year 1902 will show a decrease of about 20 per cent. on that of 1901. In this case the outlook for sugar-merchants is certainly favourable. Continuous fluctuation, however, in market prices is predicted for the next two months while the season's crop is being brought in, and stagnation is anticipated during January, February, and part of March; but from that time prices are likely to strengthen and get firmer on the possibility—considered very probable in Germany—that the English tax on imported sugar may be rescinded on the presentation of the Budget for 1903 by the Chancellor of the Exchequer during the Easter Session of the Houses of Parliament. It will be remembered, also, that, in accordance with the resolution adopted at the Brussels Convention, it was determined that the Bounty of (about) 1s. 3d. per cwt. granted by the State for the encouragement of the German sugar-export trade, shall be abolished on September 1st, 1903; and this important event will naturally have a beneficial effect on the market prices of both raw and refined sugar during several months preceding September. It was foretold at the end of 1900 that the following year would be very unfavourable for the sugar trade of Germany, and this prediction was amply fulfilled by the state of prices at the end of the year; but now, after reviewing the whole question from its present position, one may perhaps be justified in expressing the opinion that the prospect for the season 1902-1903 shows a marked improvement probable in the price of sugar in comparison with last year, although prices are likely to depreciate to a certain extent during the first few months of the year.

POLICE COURT.

Wednesday, 19th November.

BEFORE MR. F. A. HAZELAND (Police Magistrate).

THEFT AT MURRAY BARRACKS.
Chau Cheung, servant boy employed at Murray Barracks, pleaded not guilty to stealing from the Soldier's Institute at Murray Barracks a cash-box containing $12, the property of Private Bell, Derbyshire Regiment.

The complainant gave evidence as to finding the cash-box on the person of the accused, and when this statement had been corroborated by Private Lloyd of the Welsh Fusiliers, sentence was passed of six weeks' imprisonment with hard labour.

CARELESS JUNK-MAKER.
Lung Mui, set dresser on the charge-sheet as the captain of a trading junk, was fined $25 for neglecting to provide a serviceable tarpaulin for cargo of kerosene oil. There were fifty or sixty cases of oil exposed, according to the evidence of P. C. Jackson, the complainant.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.
For neglecting to take precautions to prevent the projecting into the air of stones that were being thashed at Aberdeen the other day, Lep Chin, the foreman in charge of the operations, was fined $20, on the complaint of Sergeant Smith.

BEFORE MR. J. M. KEMP (Acting Police Magistrate).

BUFFALO CHASES A PONY.
Mak Sheng, a cattle-dealer at Wong-neichung, was charged by Mr. E. C. Pontifex, solicitor, with allowing a buffalo cow to be at large on the public roadway, in consequence of which a mare belonging to the complainant became frightened and broke away from the reins, afterwards injuring herself. The charge was denied.

The mare and another pony, it was stated in Court, were being led off the Racecourse when the buffalo, coming in the opposite direction in charge of a native boy, broke away and rushed at the mare belonging to the complainant, which bolted and subsequently fell, injuring itself.

As it had been clearly shown that the buffalo was not trained to be upon the public roadway, but had been led by a halter and had broken away from the attendant, the magistrate dismissed the case.

CONTRAVENING BUILDING REGULATIONS.
P. C. Crisp, inspector of buildings, Public Works Department, summoned the occupier of shop No. 105, Queen's Road Central for contravening alterations on the premises without submitting plans and without obtaining permission from the Director of Public Works.

The complainant described the alterations that had been carried out, and said they removed one staircase dangerous to the occupants. A Chinese cooking-hearth on the top floor was erected on rotten joists.

The hearing was adjourned till the 21st inst. at 10 a.m., the defendant being allowed bail of $100.

THE GERMAN COLONIES.

The German Colonial Congress concluded its labours on the 11th ult. with a dinner at the Kaiserhof Hotel, Berlin. The Congress passed a number of resolutions, of which the most important were to the following effect:—

In order to prevent German emigrants from being lost to their native country it was recommended that neglect on the part of a German emigrant for ten years to enter his name on the lists of a German Consulate should automatically involve the loss of his personal nationality as well as that of his children. It was resolved that the German Government should no longer protect the natives in the international basin of the Congo in respect of trading rights and the protection of the natives was no longer in accordance with the provisions of the Congo Act, and that the treaty ought to be revised in the interest of the signatory Powers. It was declared that, in order to make Germany as far as possible independent of foreign countries (sic) in her supply of raw colonial products, the Government should be trained to work by means of taxation and by employing them in public enterprises and in reclaiming the territories for the purposes of civilisation. The colonies ought also to be opened up by railways and roads. A methodical German colonisation of German South-West Africa was described as one of the most important objects of colonial policy. For the realisation of this project more liberal financial assistance from the Empire was required.

There was a great deal of discussion regarding the German settlements in Southern Brazil. Several resolutions were recommended in order to enable the existing German colonies, who numbered about 200,000, to preserve their national character and their language. The result of this policy would be that an extensive market would be created in Brazil for German goods, while raw materials, which were necessary for German industry, would be exported thence. It was, no doubt, necessary in South America to beat the competition of England and of the United States, especially that of the latter, which, when the Isthmian Canal was constructed, would, as regards the west coast of South America, have an advantage of 2,000 miles over European shipping. But the important places for trade with South America were on the east coast, where the mouths of the great rivers were not more distant from Europe than from New York or New Orleans. The commercial geographer, Dr. Jannasch, proposed a declaration of the Congress to the effect that the interests of civilisation and the interests of German emigration and of German commerce and industry required that German emigration should be directed to South American countries with temperate climates, especially to Southern Brazil.

In the sectional meetings Herr Moritz Schenck spoke very strongly against migration to Argentina, where he said the powerful labour party regarded the German as a too diligent workman who lowered the rate of wages. Dr. J. J. Rohrbach discussed the Baghdad Railway, and said that it would require all the energy and intelligence of German industrialists and merchants to secure the first place in the new markets which the railway might open up. The effect of the enterprise might be to strengthen the Turkish State and thus help to secure the "open door" in Turkey for Germany as well as for others.

M. DELCASSE AND FASHODA.

Some interesting particulars of the negotiations respecting the Fashoda affair are contained in an appreciative sketch of the career of M. Delcasse, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, contributed by M. Adolphe Brisson to the New Free Press of Vienna. M. Brisson describes the extremely difficult position of the Minister on that occasion. He found himself placed between the danger created by the passions excited in France by the Dreyfus affair, which only sought an opportunity to vent themselves, and that arising from the ill-disposed disposition of England who was ready for war, and "desired to humiliate our navy, which, although not equal to the English, had occasionally aroused jealousy."

M. Delcasse's embarrassment was increased by the circumstance that we were not sufficiently prepared for such a terrible eventuality, and that our national defences were inadequate in many respects. For instance, Bismarck would have fallen into the hands of the English without a blow. We would have fought to the bitter end, but without any great hope of success. Consequently the negotiations took place under very unsatisfactory conditions. They were extremely difficult and M. Delcasse made some sleepless nights and many anxious days. Sir Edmund Monson, the British Ambassador in Paris, had a decisive interview with him in the month of November. Had he an ultimatum in his pocket, as people pretend? I cannot venture to say. At any rate, his attitude was not unaccommodating, but was, on the contrary, marked by exceptional brusqueness. It is certain that Sir Edmund Monson was instructed to assume an uncompromising manner. M. Delcasse spoke to him in very loyal and precise terms. "I cannot believe," he said, "that you want war. In any case it will rest with you to declare it, as I shall systematically avoid giving any pretext for it." As the Ambassador gave no answer M. Delcasse proceeded as follows:—"What advantages could we derive from it? If we were victorious we might, it is true, increase our colonial possessions. But what we have in view at present is simply to utilise and defend them. Neither you nor we have an interest in mutually weakening and impoverishing each other. In case of a formal provocation we would, of course, wage a ruthless struggle, but you would be responsible for it." As Sir Edmund Monson was about to speak M. Delcasse interrupted him, exclaiming:—"Take time for reflection." The Ambassador was silent. And at that moment the crisis passed its climax. Negotiations began. An agreement was arrived at. The half-drawn swords were pushed back into their scabbards.

THE NEW AMERICAN CONSUL AT HONGKONG.

GENERAL BRAGG AND THE CUBA NS.
The following despatch to the Sue. Francisco Chronicle is dated Washington, 8th October:—
Edward S. Bragg, Consul-General at Havana, has been transferred to the post of Consul-General at Hongkong, taking the place of William A. Rublee, who has been transferred to the Consulate at Havana.

The change in the Havana Consulate-General has been in contemplation for almost three months. It was fully decided that it was necessary to make the change and the only question was where Consul-General Bragg could be placed without substantial loss to himself, for it is difficult to find in the consular service a position paying as well as that of Havana. The official salary for the place is $5,000 per annum, but there are fees attached, much of which go to the Consul-General, which swell the total compensation to about $7,000 a year. Although it is realized that General Bragg has shown a lack of judgment, at least, in allowing, to escape from him a rather contemptuous criticism of the Cuban people in view of the fact that he was not directly responsible for its publication, the President decided to look on his case with a lenient eye.

Early in July, General Bragg wrote a letter to his wife at her home in this country, in which he used this language:—"Uncle Sam might as well try to make a whistle of a pig's tail as to try to make something out of the Latin race." The letter was published on July 14. A few days later the Cuban Government asked Mr. Squiers, our Minister to Havana, if the quotation was authentic, intimating that if it were so General Bragg probably had destroyed his usefulness at Havana.

By direction of the State Department Mr. Squiers called on General Bragg for an explanation. He at once admitted the authenticity of the quotation, but held he had a right to write what he pleased in a strictly personal letter to his own family, and without discussing the question with the General, the State Department decided that a change must be made and set about to find another place for General Bragg. About two weeks ago this was found through the willingness of United States Consul-General William A. Rublee at Hongkong, China, to change his post for that at Havana. The delay in making the announcement of the change has been caused by the necessity of arranging the details of the transfer. It is understood now that these have been perfected and that the change will take place as soon as Rublee can reach Havana. Mr. Rublee's post at Hongkong is salaried at $5,000 per annum and his notarial fees, to all of which he is entitled, amounting last year to $1,047, so that General Bragg probably will not lose very much by the change.

CAPTAIN PERCY SCOTT.

The Naval and Military Record writes:—
One of the many brilliant and distinguished for good taste, alleges that Captain Percy Scott has incurred the jealousy of his brother captains and the Admiralty officials by his zeal for improving the gunnery of the Navy. It is actually alleged that many officers regard this zeal as "bad form." So far from showing hostility or jealousy toward Captain Scott, our senior naval officers in command of his Majesty's ships have profited by his example in many cases, and on the China station especially this has been the case. Captain Sir George Warrander and other captains have adopted the "dotted" system, and to this process of training the splendid shooting record of the battleship Ocean is largely attributable. The Admiralty, too, have decided to supply the "dotted" apparatus to the fleet, so that there is nowhere to be discovered signs of the jealousy and enmity to which our contemporary allude. At the same time, we feel bound to observe that the recent ceremony of presenting war medals to the crew of H.M.S. Terrible might and should have been marked by greater ceremony in view of the exceptional services performed by this ship's company. The crew desired that their medals should be presented by Sir Redvers Buller. This was not permitted, and the presentation was made by Captain Scott himself on the south railway jetty of the Dockyard, at the rate of 25 per minute. Now, this is not the way to popularise the navy. There should have been a public ceremony, and the presentation ought to have been made by some person of distinction unconnected with the ship, as, for example, the First Lord of the Admiralty, whose interest in gunnery might thus have found graceful expression.

SPORT AND ANECDOTE.
BY AN OLD FOGGY.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL IN IRELAND.

My promises are not like those of politicians—made of plectrum, only to be broken. I have a desire to tell you a little concerning the development of the Association game of football in Erin's Isle, for the best of all reasons, that the first great match of their season was played in the essentially modern and thriving city of Belfast last Saturday, when the chosen eleven of the Irish League gave battle unto the team sent over by the Football League. I do not refer to the latter body as the English League, because I have reason to know that its officials do not approve of such a designation. This was the first of all Leagues in either cricket or in the winter game in the British Isles, and the founder of the institution, Mr. W. McGregor, of Birmingham, thinks that such an original organization is entitled to the definite prefix and article—The Football League. Now precisely one year after its formation the Irish League was established, or to be precise, in March, 1890 Belfast being its headquarters. Moreover the capital of Ulster has ever since remained, as indeed, it was before, the great centre of "Soccer" football across St. George's Channel, just in the same way as dear, dirty Dublin is devoted to the Rugby Union code. The Irish League was at once a success, but not until this campaign has a Dublin team been included in the select circle. The Dublin Bohemians, an amateur band, have been accepted, and bids fair to be popular members, for one of their young men, Pratt, an inside right, was included in the team last Saturday. But the oldest club in Hibernia is the Cliftonville, and this owes its existence like many other clubs to the missionary example and enterprise of the dear old Queen's Park of Glasgow. In 1876 the Queen's and the Caledonians crossed over from the city of St. Mungo and played an exhibition game at Ballynafeigh, and the simplicity and beauty of the dribbling science fascinated all beholders as it usually does, especially when it once has a fair trial in Rugby strongholds. A few enthusiasts formed the Cliftonville club in October, 1879, taking their name from the Cliftonville cricket club. The opening match took place in the same month, and curiously enough their first opponents were a body of Rugby footballers who styled themselves the Quiddians. But any football is better than none, and the Quiddians defeated those who had never kicked a ball before by 2-1. In 1880-81 the Irish Cup was founded, and in its first year the Cliftonville were the runners-up for the trophy, but, of course, there were only a few competitors, for the example of Cliftonville was not without immediate effect. But Cliftonville developed, and in 1882-83 won the Irish cup—a success they repeated in 1887-88, 1896-97, 1899-1900, and 1900-01. But while they have been such due cup warriors they have, like many of their brethren in England, proved indifferent fighters for League honours, as these they have never annexed despite the smaller size of the Irish body, although they have been the runners-up in four or five years. And yet Cliftonville has provided more international players for Ireland than any other club. Its members play for the love of the game, and it was at the home of these enthusiasts, commonly called the New Solitude, that last Saturday's game was decided. The site is picturesque, as it lies in a valley under considerable hills. As the club have purchased an extensive freehold estate, they have built houses on a portion and let them, while four acres make a nice playing piece. Belfast possesses many other clubs of importance, notably Linfield, Distillery, Glentworth, and Celtic, but one feels inclined to surmise the position of Cliftonville as the oldest, and the owners of the rendezvous for the latest Inter-League match. There was a time, as I have said, when football of this type was confined to Belfast, but in addition to Dublin the game is practised in Cork and in Sligo, but the popularity of the pastime in the North is attested by the fact that the County Antrim Association has 100 clubs on its roll, and Lister 50, while there are numerous combinations in Ulster and other parts of the green isle. There is a great future for the "Soccer" scientists in this land, although the well-to-do folk are sure to remain loyal to Rugby rules.

THE INTER-LEAGUE MATCH.

The game seen at Cliftonville by a crowd which represented about 2500 was exceedingly interesting, for it was a fast and furious exhibition, full of exciting incidents and capable play from end to end. It must not be surmised from the use of the word furious that roughness was paramount, although two of the players were badly injured. From those occurrences those passive but prejudicial persons who compile what they term Butcher's Bills at the expense of football as a sport will be sure to find an argument, but it may interest them to learn that each man hurt himself. Charles Sagar, of Bury, jumped to head a ball at the same time as the opposing back. The latter was a fraction of a second too quick for him, and McCracken, the Belfast Distillery defender, cleared his lines and glided out of the way with the result that Sagar fell on his left shoulder and dislocated the collar bone. It will be some time before this international forward is again fit for duty. It is curious that a considerable time after when the second half was well advanced, McCracken wrenched his own ankle so severely that his boot was removed and he was carried ## off to the dressing-room. Surely no Butcher's Bill statistical and will describe these mishaps to violent play—and yet one never knows. After considerable pressure by the Irish, the Englishmen scored at their first attempt; that is to say, the first time their forwards broke through the opposing half-backs. From a penalty kick against Tremonger for quite a trifling offence, the Irish equalised the record, while within a moment or two their forwards headed a corner into goal, just at the moment my neighbour was declaring that the Irishmen were of no use with their heads. McKelvey was the scorer, so that the centre forward of each team did damage. Thus the Hibernians, and were simply wild with the prospect of triumph. But they reckoned without Steve Bloomer, the Derby County strategist and sharpshooter, who certainly won the game by registering two lovely goals with those swift, low drives which come to goalkeepers at all angles and simply paralyse their eyes and hands. Thus the Englishmen had the honour of winning on Irish soil by 3-2, while they also had two "goals" disallowed. I use the word "goals" because I thought that each point was perfectly valid despite the assurance of Mr. J. Robertson, the referee, to the contrary. The Irishmen had plenty of chance to win had their forwards shot with anything like power and precision. As it was, their attempts to pierce the defence were either too weak for words, or fired entirely. Indeed, the sweetest little push of the ball would have equalised the scores, but Master Boodle, a most promising youth of 18, who assists the Cliftonville, thought the goal was up and so cannoned with the crossbar. But what I liked about the game was the whole-souled energy of the Celtic allied with a good measure of skill. I expected that the Englishmen would win by a large majority as it is customary; but to tell the truth, Jack was about as good as his master. Their goalkeeper, Lewis, was feeble, but the Irish backs were a good rousing pair with the common fault of lifting the ball too high. The half-backs were like leeches, and they reminded one of the two told both of Johnny Holt and Harry Allen. It is said that somebody remarked to either one or both of these celebrities: "You can't play football." The reply was quick and to the point when it came. The speaker: "Yes; I know I can't play football, but I can stop those who can play." Buckle and Kirkwood, the home left wing pair, were the cleverest, but Pratt, of the Bohemians, at times showed fine play. The result does not seem too satisfying so far as the prospects of England in the great matches are concerned. Baddeley, the "Wolf," kept a good goal as usual, but Glover the right back of Liverpool, was surprisingly feeble. Tremonger useful as he is, is not to my mind the polished, resourceful and reliable back some folks make him out to be. The English half-backs, Dan Nurse, the popular and splendid captain of Wolverhampton Wanderers, Tom Boot, the cautious and clever skipper of Everton, and
